Did you hear the one...

Spouting off a favorite punchline is Oscar, a dummy with a repertoire of jokes supplied by his creator, James Stephenson of Romulus. Oscar continues to delight relatives and friends with his expressive features and quick wit, although it seems that Stephenson has heard them all before. — The Roman photo.

Oscar's a charmer But the girls call him dummy

By MAUREEN RADEMACHER
Of The Roman Staff

Oscar is a rosy-cheeked, blue-eyed charmer, with eyebrows that raise in a flirtatious manner, a cocky red hat, plaid bow tie and penetrating gaze that might make you forget that his head is made of wood.

It seems unfair to call him a dummy, although that's what he is. The product of the imagination and skilled hand of James Stephenson of Romulus, Oscar is about the size of a 5-year-old as he sits comfortably on his creator's lap.

His eyes are deep blue, and they roll around in their sockets in a wistful manner at the whim of Stephenson, who can also raise the dummy's eyebrows, wiggle his ears and, of course, manipulate his mouth as he "speaks."

OSCAR ALSO IS outfitted with a pair of glasses to add a special character to his personality.

Although he looks as if he hasn't aged a bit over the years, Oscar is about 40 years old. Inspired by ventriloquist Edgar Bergen and his dummy, Charlie McCarthy, Oscar's creation was done by a method of experimentation and guesswork.

"No one taught me how to make it," Stephenson explained. "I just took a block of wood and started whittling."

A pocket knife and file were the only instruments used to shape the features of the face and ears, then the dummy was painted and clothed with help from Stephenson's wife, Vernice.

OSCAR'S HANDS were formed in a different way, by making a plaster cast out of their son's hands when he was 5 years old.

This is the second dummy made by Stephenson. The first one "just didn't

*'I just took

suit me," he explained. The first doll didn't do all the things Oscar can do. Levers and strings attached to the dummy's mouth, ears, eyes and eyebrows and worked by various fingers and thumbs can make his facial features expressive.

Stephenson reserves his performances with Oscar to family reunions and gatherings and private groupings of neighbors and friends.

Using ventriloquism, Stephenson jokes and discusses all kinds of subjects with his dummy, delighting children and adults alike.

THE STEPHENSONS have three children, 14 grandchildren and 5 great-grandchildren who have come to know Oscar and his humor.

Like any performer, Stephenson delights in his audiences' amusements with the "act."

"I really enjoy it. I get a kick out of seeing kids laugh," he said. "The adults get a kick out of it, too."

The dialogue between creator and dummy consists mostly of jokes gathered "a little piece here and a little piece there" while Oscar talks to and about his audience.

BEFORE A FAMILY reunion, where he is sure to be called on to give a performance, three weeks of practice is necessary, Stephenson said.

Since the ventriloquism work is all done in the throat, a sore throat is an occupational hazard. Lots of practice and rehearsing is necessary to coordinate the words and mouth movement of Oscar.

Even though Oscar spends much of his time living in a suitcase, his wit is sharp and his features alert. With a flirtatious eyebrow raised, you half expect this little dummy to give you a wink, jump off Stephenson's lap, and head out the door.

out the fat — and some of the muscle — to save $170 million today its bills over the last months of 1974.

Detroit Edison is going broke.

Its earnings per share have dropped to 3.2 cents a month, well under the $1.45 per share annual dividend requirement which the company is facing Sept. 5.

TOP EXECUTIVES say the company is making a 7.5 per cent return. The Michigan Public Service Commission (PSC) has authorized a 12.12 return, but its peak was 10.74 per cent in 1972.

power and the people

Two kinds of people are being hurt by the combination of inflation which pushed operating and construction costs up, the deteriorating money market and the need for expansion:

—The consumer, who seriously is threatened with reduced power including blackouts and brownouts within the next six years because the company is unable to build sufficient generating capacity.

—The Detroit Edison stockholder who has seen his investment plummet from $21.50 a share in 1972 to $10 in mid-August.

IT HAS MADE Detroit Edison unable to attract money even at the highest interest rates because its profits are down. It has driven the company to the political wall seeking a rate increase in an election year.

The service area, Detroit and north to the tip of the Thumb (Port Austin), west to Williamston and southwest to Ida in Monroe County, contains 5 million people — more than half the population of the state.

Even the full $93,048,000 rate increase being sought from the PSC won't solve all its financial problems, but it would buy time and flexibility to stave off disaster. Detroit Edison generates one-third of its revenues from its operations and borrows the rest. The inability to borrow is the biggest crunch.

PSC CHAIRMAN William G. Rosenberg, testifying almost unnoticed before the U.S. Senate Committee on Interior and Insular Affairs in August, stated the crisis:

"I believe we are faced with a situation where the nation's electric industry has no chance whatever, under present circumstances, of delivering adequate electric power to meet the country's needs in the long term."

"In a capital intensive (need to borrow) industry, where $4.67 of investment is needed to produce $1 of revenue, an inability to raise capital simply means an inability to serve the public."

Judge weakens case in city's runway suit

By DALE GOWING
Of The Roman Staff

The Romulus injunction suit against Detroit Metropolitan Airport expansion was weakened slightly but nonetheless has stayed alive.

U.S. District Court Judge Cornelia G. Kennedy Monday declined to uphold a motion by Wayne County and the Wayne County Road Commission (WCRC) to dismiss Romulus' suit, but did strike from the suit four of the six charges, listed by the Romulus plaintiffs.

The two remaining charges brought by the City of Romulus, Romulus Community School District and Romulus homeowner Fouad Berry were the most important ones, however.

THEY DEALT WITH the plaintiffs' insistence that the WCRC's Environmental Protection Statement (EPS) is insufficient, and the plaintiffs' right to sue the county.

The county had charged that it is illegal for one governmental body (City of Romulus) to sue another governmental body (the county).

Judge Kennedy overruled the county's charge, however, then made a surprise move by ordering the Federal Aviation Administration (FAA) into the case as a defendant.

The WCRC operates the airport, and the FAA is responsible for any environmental protection violations caused by aircraft.

IN ESSENCE, THE primary complaint lodged against the airport and road commission by the plaintiffs was upheld by Judge Kennedy, that being the plaintiffs' charge that the road commission's EPS describing the impact future runway expansion would make on the surrounding area, is inaccurate.

"What it all means is that we're going to get our day in court after all," said Berry.

The Monday hearing on whether to dismiss the Romulus case had been rescheduled three times by two judges. Judge Kennedy's decision to sustain the major charges in the case paved the way for a decision on Romulus' request for a temporary injunction against further runway construction at the airport.

Shopping plaza joins business scene

By DALE GOWING
Of The Roman Staff

"Something pretty big" in terms of a department store apparently is on the drawing board for a shopping center being proposed for an area near the Romulus City Hall.

Romulus Mayor Terry L. Troutt said he anticipates a major store to be built in the center, which could be a boost to the city's economy.

"I have anticipated something pretty big for the center," he said. "I would imagine it is a department store."

THE MAYOR WOULD not list the names of stores believed to be possibilities for the center, however. Most city and building officials are keeping a tight lid on details of the proposed plaza to hold down the price of land they will need for the center.

"They're not talking because of the land values," said Troutt of the developers.

He also would not say which developer is doing the planning or if plans were to the blueprint stage yet.

The Romulus Roman learned of the impending shopping center construction three weeks ago. Troutt at that time said the center might consist of "12 or 15 stores."

HE ADDED THAT it is expected to be "in excess of 20 acres near the city hall." Developers reportedly still are recruiting companies to lease space in the center.

The shopping center construction will be followed soon after by a high-rise senior citizens housing complex, officials have said.

"This shopping center can be real convenient for the people," Troutt added. "It's something everybody needs so bad, the city itself would benefit because the store buildings would be taxable, along with their inventory."

Troutt earlier said he anticipated that the center and subsequent high-rise housing will pave the way for further commercial development.

"IT COULD DEVELOP into a central development area," he explained. "I imagine a lot of activities would take place in the same area once this gets going."

Troutt is most pleased over the prospect of obtaining the housing, since Romulus lacks any such facility for its elderly residents. The city's goal is to have federal and state subsidized housing for seniors. However, that goal is unreachable until new shopping facilities are built.

To be subsidized, which will allow tenants to pay a rent based on income, the housing unit must have a shopping center no more than 500 feet away, he said.

"The city could build a direct-rent project where everybody pays the same rent, but not very many people could live there," he added. "But the city would like some of the housing in the building to be subsidized. It's very important here because there are many low income senior citizens."

TROUTT SAID the builders cannot submit an application for the housing construction until the shopping center plans are finalized.

Presently, Romulus residents have to leave the city, if they wish to shop at a major shopping center. Most of their business goes to the Westland Center and malls in Dearborn and Taylor.

To available services

VA school pay available early

Veterans and servicemen who plan to train under the GI Bill this fall should act promptly to receive advance payment of educational assistance, the Veterans Administration (VA) regional office in Detroit has urged.

Frank Kikulen, director of the office, noted that many schools open their doors for the fall term in September, and tardy notification of training plans could delay the trainee's first check by several weeks. GI Bill students returning to the same school may notify their schools by phone or letter, he said.

Authorized under a law enacted in 1972, advance payment covers the first month or portion of month of training, plus the following month.

It was put into effect last fall to eliminate financial difficulties some veterans experienced while waiting for their first assistance checks to arrive under the former system of payment.

Community mart goes social in bringing people together

BY RIC BOHY
Of The Roman Staff

The drought-stricken weather this summer didn't make much difference to a good number of citizens in Romulus. They turned up each Saturday to sell and purchase produce and products at the Romulus Community Mart anyway.

"It has been one of the more positive things that has happened to me since being elected to office," said Romulus Council President Beverly McAnally, who chairs the committee in charge of the once-weekly market. "People just had a lot of faith in a good idea, and the thing took off."

Mrs. McAnally added the mart was started late in June in an effort to provide new products and home-grown food items for sale in a centralized location. A secondary purpose of the project, which runs from 9 a.m. until sometime in the midafternoon on Saturdays in the parking lot at Romulus City Hall, is to give residents a chance to get together and enjoy each other rather than going out of the city for socializing.

"ROMULUS DOESN'T really have a downtown business district where a lot of people from the community get together each day," she said. "The Community Mart allows them to do that."

"I've had a lot of people mention that they've run into friends at the market that they haven't seen for 20 years."

The Romulus City Council provided $1,000 to finance the operation at its inception, a large portion of which went to city permits for occupying space at city hall. But Mrs. McAnally said much of those funds have been recouped through the $3 fees charged to those people who set up booths at the site.

"People with everything you can think of come here to sell," she explained. "The only restrictions the city places on them is that the items must be new or hand-made, or home-grown produce."

ITEMS SUCH as homemade greeting cards, children's halter tops and shorts, ecology boxes, baby chicks, fresh fruit and house plants have been sold regularly at the mart since it first opened.

"The only disappointment, and I really hate to mention it because the mart has been pretty successful, is that more community groups haven't come out to hold fundraisers or registration drives," the council president said.

Mrs. McAnally added that the success of the mart this year has encouraged her committee to begin plans for expanded operations next year. Being added now is a "flea market" for the resale of items other than furniture or clothing.

"WE'D REALLY like to see some recreational and social activities included in the mart next summer," she said. "There are just so many things that can be done with it. We're looking forward to starting up all over again in the spring."

The Romulus Community Market will continue through the end of October, and residents with items for sale or any other ideas for booths are encouraged to contact Mrs. McAnally at the city hall.

Moore offers plans

If Huron Township Supervisor George W. Moore proposes to the Huron Township Board of Trustees tonight that it create a position of township manager, he is likely to be greeted by a wall of opposition.

That is the belief of Township Clerk Mary Lou Carey, who said Moore's suggestion to create the new post could not advance past the proposal stage since having a township manager "is against the law."

"Huron would have to become a charter township before it could do anything like that," Mrs. Carey explained.

"BESIDES, HE (Moore) was elected to do a job, and if you don't want to do a job, you don't put your name on the ballot," she added.

Moore had said he wished to create the manager position to lessen the administrative burden on the supervisor. He also suggested that the supervisor's salary be cut from $15,500 to about $6,000 effective with the job creation. The manager would receive a salary of about $13,000.

Moore first introduced the proposal to the board about eight months ago, but it was not acted upon at that time.

He said the township manager idea has been positively received "by a couple of the board members."

MRS. CAREY, however, believes Moore never introduced the proposal to the board before, and added that none of the board members favored the idea, as far as she knew.

Moore may approach the board with the proposal at its 8 o'clock meeting tonight, but Mrs. Carey said she will fight the proposal.

Moore was expected to make his proposal to the board Aug. 28, but did not attend the meeting.

Romulus gets money under federal project

A 2-day trip to Chicago by five Romulus city officials resulted in the city's acquiring of $154,000 in federal funds to be used for urban renewal, senior citizen housing or to develop the city's parks system.

The money is coming to Romulus through a new program which will replace urban renewal and model cities grant programs. Only those cities involved in urban renewal are eligible to benefit from the federal funds.

According to Romulus Mayor Pro Tem Beverly

McAnally, who attended the conference in Chicago along with Romulus Urban Renewal Director George Wilhelm and council members Lnnn Coleman, Jack Trumble and Joan Lee, Romulus will use its $154,000 share in one project, rather than divide it up.

"The city intends to get the maximum benefit for the greatest number of people out of the money," she said. "It won't spread it out over several areas, I'm sure."

She expressed interest in seeing the funds earmarked for future building of a senior citizens housing complex. Other areas she suggested the money may go toward are urban renewal and park development.

She said Wilhelm currently is in the process of "drawing up a proposal for spending the money."

Mrs. McAnally admitted the $154,000 really "isn't very much" when considering the soaring costs of urban renewal and building projects, but added that it is "more than many communities are getting."

The money is part of a $2.5 billion program recently signed into law by President Gerald Ford, allocating money to cities in a 6-year program for purposes of development, recreation or other uses. A strict set of rules has been set up for fund use, said a government official.

The legislation unofficially is tabbed "community development funding."

Judge delays exam

Examination of three men charged with first degree murder in the shooting death of a Westland woman in Romulus has been postponed until Sept. 25 in Romulus' 34th District Court.

The postponement was granted by Judge James B. Stone after attorneys for the three defendants requested additional time to prepare their case. Stone made the ruling at the initial examination last Wednesday.

Randolph R. Young, 26, of 5740 Farnum, Romulus; Major J. Smith, 27, of Inkster, and Ronald Moore, 28, of Detroit, are charged in connection with the murder of Anita L. Bauman, 19, of Westland, in a Romulus apartment Aug. 26.

A companion of Miss Bauman, Kosnesko Foster of Belleville, was wounded by gunfire at the time of Miss Bauman's death and reportedly still is under observation at Wayne County General Hospital.

Wayne County Sheriff's Department detectives believe the shootings were drug-related and have Foster under police guard at the hospital.

There's trouble within

Detroit Edison Co. is going broke

But there is a third side to the story stated by Assistant Atty. Gen. Hugh Anderson, who heads up special litigation for Atty. Gen. Frank J. Kelley.

Anderson, described by utility executives as a dangerous ideologue whom Kelley can't control, joined Kelley's office in 1962, was assistant in the PSC for three years, went with the Uninsured Motorists Fund and worked on the highway department investigation and later the grand jury.

He said that Michigan utilities basically are in good condition, that problems have developed from poor management, not low rates, and that Detroit Edison is crying "wolf."

ANDERSON SAID he will believe the story of financial disaster when utility executives bypass their annual salary increases. Consolidated Edison, the current horror story of utility finances which missed paying a dividend for the first time in this century, slashed executive salaries between five and 10 per cent. No Michigan utility has yet done that.

"They aren't on the brink of ruin," Anderson said. "Edison earned $76 million last year and even that is underestimated because they claimed income tax expenses of $36 million that they didn't have to pay."

Anderson, who also is critical of Rosenberg and the PSC, acknowledged the utilities have problems — the high cost of money and the reduced price of their stock.

He said sales are down five per cent this year when there normally would be a five per cent increase "so you are talking about a 10 per cent drop in anticipated revenues."

THE PROBLEMS, EVEN diluted by a powerful critic of the utilities, remain.

Detroit Edison has borrowed all it can from Detroit banks and is being turned away from important New York sources.

power  and the people

Desperate financial officers said they had to seek help in Nova Scotia and Montreal.

The company is at the bottom of a pile of dominoes. Its stock has fallen more than 50 per cent in value and investors, schooled in the creed that utility stocks were solid income-producers if not spectacular in growth, are shattered.

MONEY MARKET-watchers in the east are ducking utilities. They look at Michigan's demonstrably tough regulatory climate and run. The political mood, which influences the regulators, is even more sharply against the utilities in an election year.

In the pile of fallen dominoes are three major factors — lower profits due to the costs of inflation and the lid on rate increases, the drying up of big money and the peaking of technological advances.

There is strong evidence that Detroit Edison is imposing massive cutbacks to improve the cash flow to be in position to make its Sept. 15 dividend commitment.

The company did not raise its rates in the 20 years before 1968, but reduced them three times by a total of $11.4 million. Now the days of plenty are over.

SINCE 1970, Detroit Edison has asked for $207 million in rate increases (not including the latest) and has received authority for $109.5 million.

In its latest petition, filed April 15, the company said its profit margin has continued to slip and it is committed to a costly construction program to make sure the lights and television sets stay on in 1980.

Detroit Edison said it spent $392 million on construction in 1973, budgeted $420 million for 1974 and forecasted spending $555 million in 1975.

Company officials added that they had planned a $5.6 billion 5-year construction program leading up to 1980, but were forced to cut it back to $4.9 billion last May. Those are big numbers for Mr. and Mrs. Homeowner but commonplace for the people who keep power and heat flowing into homes.

ROBERT W. HARTWELL, executive vice-president for finance and corporate affairs, said the $170 million in cutbacks to improve the company's cash flow will show up in a lower quality of service within a year.

That means that power knocked out by storms will stay out longer, a blacked-out subdivision might have to wait for days instead of hours. It will take longer for service to be connected, some new customers — both residential and industrial — might be turned away.

Rosenberg agreed these are possible as early as 1975.

The ripple effect could result in the loss of industry and jobs and cause greater political impact than the higher rates to the consumer.

HUGH C. DALY, president of Michigan Consolidated Gas Co., argues that the damage to Detroit Edison will hurt all utilities and their customers. The only apparent immediate answer is a rate increase.

Daly said there are 250,000 utility stockholders in Michigan — all voters with some influence on at least one other vote, more than enough to give any statewide candidate a landslide.

The percentage of after-tax pay that a Detroit Edison customer spends on electricity actually has declined since 1968.

When the average income was $7,532 in 1968, the annual bill for a customer using 500 kilowatt hours a month was $155.40 or 2.1 per cent of his income. His bill in 1973 was $180.72 but his income was $10,660, reducing the percentage to 1.7 per cent.

THE CUTBACKS to generate cash are geared "to keep our heads above water now" but will be expensive in the long run, Hartwell said.

They include an 8-month delay in construction of Fermi II, a boiling water conventional nuclear generating plant at Monroe, next door to Fermi I, built by a consortium of utilities to develop a fast-breeder nuclear reactor. Fermi I has been decommissioned and the federal government controls it now. Edison contributed $54 million.

Fermi II, estimated in June to cost $510.8 million, will cost an estimated $150 million more when construction resumes.

Detroit Edison also is delaying for eight months construction of Greenwood I Energy Center on a six square-mile site 15 miles northwest of Port Huron. Eventually it will be an oil-fired generating plant costing $212.3 million. The cost of the delay has not been estimated.

TWO OTHERS ON the drawing boards, Greenwood II and Fermi III are being delayed, together with indefinite schedules for Belle River I and II, coal fired units near St. Clair. The latter two are estimated at $588.5 million. All construction is designed to take care of future home and industry needs.

The construction setbacks will improve the cash flow by $60 million, company officials said.

Other elements of the program call for selling the Detroit Edison coal pile and leasing it back, $42 million in Rosenberg's figures, selling the vehicle fleet and leasing it back, $9.5 million, deferring the payment of bills, $57 million; deferring pension fund payments, $5.5 million, cutting back on overtime, requiring construction deposits from major customers, cutting contract work by 40 per cent.

The company also will sell its trains and lease them back, improving the cash flow by $14.4 million.

SOME OF THESE are made possible by the downturn in electrical consumption caused by the lowered production of the automobile companies and by the energy conservation ethic.

Still, the decisions will reduce Detroit Edison reserves below the 20 per cent level recommended by the Federal Power Commission. That's Rosenberg's analysis.

Anderson pooh-poohs it: "Detroit Edison is overbuilt right now. It could stop building today and still have the capacity it needs for at least two or three years."

"RIGHT NOW EDISON has reserves on peak days of 26 per cent, and all they say they need is 15 per cent."

From the evidence, the only alternative at this point is the rate increase, as unpopular as it is to political people.

Detroit Edison has squeezed the fat out of its operations, has tried and failed to borrow, has suffered a loss in confidence from its own investors. And the costs of providing electric power have soared.

The new headquarters is the Detroit's Cisl Building, named for board chairman Walker L. Cisl, who headed the company during its glory days of limousines and plenty of everything. But Detroit Edison doesn't own it. The company leases five floors of the 24-story Cisl Building from Cushman-Wakefield Inc., of New York.

And there is no shrubbery to shade the land around the Cisl Building because Detroit Edison has delayed spending $14,000 for its landscaping.

As we see it

Garden wins award; So should auxiliary

Many people in Romulus do care about their surroundings, and for caring and using his "green thumb," one Romulus man won an award.

The Romulus Jaycee Auxiliary recently presented Bill Gischia with an award, for winning the auxiliary's "Parade of Flowers" contest.

The "Parade of Flowers" contest was brainstormed this year by an auxiliary member as a good way to encourage people to keep their yards well-groomed, a spokesperson said. Although the contest this year may not have encouraged people to keep up their property, it certainly awarded those who have done a good job.

The award was not meant for a professional-looking yard; rather it was meant for any residents who did a little extra to enhance the beauty of their immediate surroundings, and thus the whole community.

Although the Romulus Jaycee Auxiliary project is new this year, let's hope that more Romulus residents become aware of the contest and try to beautify their property so that they will be able to display the "Parade of Flowers" plaque.

We are sure the Gischia family is proud of the award and prouder still of their surroundings.

And although the Gischia flower garden is, no dazzling slowplace, according to the reporter that originally covered the story last week, it is a real, lived-in back yard, complete with swing set and sandbox for the kids, a picnic table and neatly stacked wood pile nestled side-by-side with the thick lush grass and variety of blooming flowers.

The Gischia yard may not be a show place, but the family must be proud that it is an award winner.

And the Romulus Jaycee Auxiliary project should win an award itself. More such projects should be initiated by groups in the area to promote a lovelier Romulus.

But he works

Rocky's boyish

By TOM BRADEN

Enterprise-Roman Special Columnist

When Nelson Rockefeller was in his early 30s, he stood one day before his father's desk, having summoned up the courage to ask for a very large loan.

His International Basic Economy Corp. (IBEC) was in trouble.

The idea had been his own, to build a private corporation in Latin America which would satisfy basic needs, for example, to bring fish from the ocean to inland communities where food was scarce.

IT WASN'T working.

At least it hadn't worked yet. For example, people wouldn't buy the fish. By logic they ought to, but they wouldn't. Rockefeller was determined that eventually they would. Meantime, the company was out of money.

"Father, IBEC needs $1 million and I have to come to you," said the young Rockefeller.

"Nelson," replied his father. "I'll lend you $1 million on one condition: that you use it to liquidate the company."

IT WAS NELSON Rockefeller's first important setback, and he has never forgotten it. Nor has he forgotten that he went out and raised the money on his own and that he was right about his company.

People would eat fish. They just needed a little time.

It was sheer boyish enthusiasm that put Rockefeller through that first test and, as he stood next to Gerald Ford wearing that "O shucks, fellows" look on his face, it occurred to me what a very boyish man he is.

I don't mean boyish 17-shy and dreamy and given to long, long thoughts. I mean boyish 12-bouncing and ready and excited, going hard all day and then getting up expectantly, fresh and ready to go.

THE MAN DOES not stop. Not only that, he does not know how to stop or see any reason why he should ever learn. He does relax.

He appears to have just as much fun playing golf or finding the right place to hang a painting as he does selling an idea about government or thinking up a new program or reviewing a budget.

But it is all of a piece. When Rockefeller is working he puts out, and when he is not working he puts out. There doesn't seem to be any difference.

You would think that at 66 a man with millions of dollars, successful careers behind him, who has known victory and defeat, seen all the places there are to see and met everybody he ever wanted to meet, you'd think that such a man might show signs of boredom, might develop a certain jaded sarcasm, might say to some enthusiastic junior, "I've heard that one before."

NOT SO. ROCKEFELLER will try harder at being vice-president than any man who ever held the job, and unless he wants to waste all that energy President Ford had better start thinking what it is he wants Rockefeller to do.

Fears have been expressed on this point, and maybe Gerald Ford has had them. Was it a sign of nervousness that Mr. Ford mispronounced his name? People have wondered out loud whether Rockefeller knows how to take a back seat.

They forget his years as undersecretary of health, education and welfare when Oveta Culp Hobby was his boss. Mrs. Hobby made no bones about who was boss.

But there was never any trouble. Rockefeller can do the second job as well as the first. Like a small boy, the only thing he cannot do is nothing.

Surely Gerald Ford does not have that in mind.

"NELSON, DROP THE NICKNAME 'ROCKY' "

CAUGHT IN THE MIDDLE.

Future of state GOP in Milliken's hands

The future of the Michigan Republican Party this fall seems to be hanging more and more on the shoulders of Gov. William G. Milliken.

It's going to be up to the popular 52-year-old governor to create the kind of enthusiasm which makes voters pull a straight Republican lever at election time.

The Republicans demonstrated at their state convention that their party suffers from a severe case of lethargy. Their enthusiasm could only be trucked out on cue and it was never good for more than a couple of minutes of polite applause and a few minutes of parading through the aisles, holding campaign posters.

AS QUICKLY as their enthusiasm got turned on, the Republicans were able to turn it off.

A number of reasons could be given for the Republican's malaise. The GOPers have just gone through the traumatic experience of having the President they elected resign from office. He was a man they had voted, supported and counted on to strengthen the Republican Party.

Their feelings about former President Nixon came through loud and clear when U.S. Sen. Robert Griffin declared: "Of course, it is sad and deeply disappointing that a President with so much ability and potential, one who has done so much to bring peace to the world, has fallen under these circumstances."

"I am truly sorry for him and my heart aches for his wonderful wife and family, who stood so bravely beside him throughout this grueling ordeal."

THE APPLAUSE after this remark by Griffin was filled with emotion. The big question coming out of the convention seems to be will Milliken take his candidates by the hand and let everybody know that he wants them in office or will he forget that he's running with candidates for attorney general, secretary of state and for the various boards of three state universities.

During bad times

Many find 2nd jobs to make ends meet

When is up down?

Answer: When you make more money but it buys less.

That's exactly what has been happening to millions of Americans. From May 1973 to May 1974, "real spendable earnings" of a married worker with three dependents dropped 5.6 per cent.

IN OTHER WORDS, prices are rising faster than wages and salaries and have been for some time.

What are people doing about it?

Some are worrying a lot. Some are arguing with their spouses more often over money problems. And some, probably, are borrowing money merely to meet expenses.

Others, of course, are moonlighting. The most recent figures from the U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics reveal that nearly seven per cent of all employed men in America hold two or more jobs.

YET, THERE'S a multi-million dollar alternative, being chosen by an increasing number of Americans — an alternative that apparently has escaped the notice of public and private agencies that watch the economy. The alternative is self-employment in second jobs (as opposed to working for someone else), a development revealed in a survey by the Family Economics Bureau of Northwestern National Life Insurance Co. of Minneapolis (NWNL).

There are many indications of this phenomenon, such as front yard signs saying, "Saw Sharpening," "Small Appliance Repair," "Picture Framing." There also are roadside vegetable stands — and homes with business signs saying "Day Nursery" or "Income Tax Service" or "Beauty Shop."

The "cottage industry" common in developing countries is flourishing in affluent, industrialized America.

Though the main reason for working after hours is necessity, there may be other forces motivating the self-employed who spend much of their spare time working for themselves. The 4-day and the fewer-hours work week have given millions more leisure time — and some choose to spend that time profitably.

SOCIOLOGISTS report widespread acceptance of the novel notion that one can enjoy work and that true happiness is enjoying "work" and earning money.

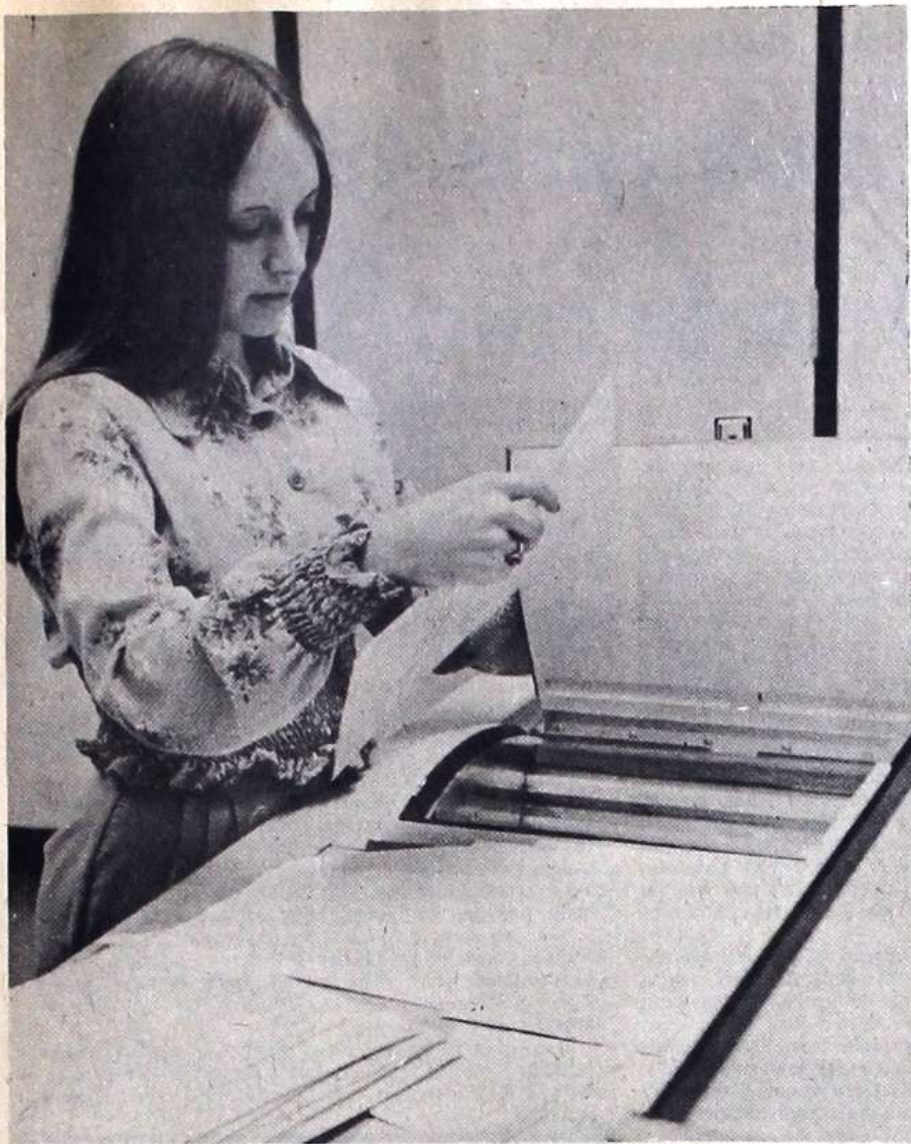

In any event, there's no doubt that millions of Americans work for themselves in their spare time — and that the millions of dollars they earn apparently are an uncalculated element in the national economic picture.

Belleville student drowns

Funeral services for 17-year-old Belleville High School senior Harold Joseph Lochli, who drowned at a campground at Petersburg in Monroe County, were held last Wednesday at St. Anthony Catholic Church of Belleville.

Burial services, handled by Roberts Bros. Inc. Funeral Home, also of Belleville, were conducted at the Hillside Cemetery, Belleville.

Lochli, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Stefan Lochli of 9450 Haggerty Rd., was playing on a raft in the middle of a small pond when he disappeared according to friends.

Monroe County Sheriff's divers recovered the body of the youth late last Sunday night. He is believed to have fallen from the raft shortly before 5 p.m.

The deputies reported that Lochli was visiting friends at the campsite outside of Monroe when the accident occurred. He was reported by friends not to be a good swimmer.

Lochli, who was to start as a high school senior this year, worked after school at Foodville Supermarket in Belleville for the last four years.

Besides his parents, Lochli is survived by three sisters: Rosemary Wells of Chicago, Ill., Margaret Tarry of North Ridgeville, O., and Monica Lochli of Belleville, and a brother, John, also of Belleville.

Animals collect ribbons

Out Romulus way there are two guinea pigs displaying recently won blue ribbons.

Named "Ringo," who is a 3-year-old boar, and "April," a 4-month-old sow, the guinea pigs owned by Mrs. Arthur Stillwagon Sr., of 9475 Biddle St., Romulus, won their blue ribbon victories at the recent Michigan State Fair.

"Our two sons, Cary and Craig, who help to care for the guinea pigs and assisted in preparing them for state fair judging, are just two happy kids," Mrs. Stillwagon said.

In funding research

Teens play important part

Thousands of teenagers will soon have the opportunity to work with an internationally-known entertainer, in spirit if not in person.

The annual Teen March for St. Jude Children's Research Hospital, sponsored by entertainer Danny Thomas, will take place during the Sept. 15 weekend in Western Wayne County and across the nation.

Teenagers wearing buttons with the inscription, "I march with Danny Thomas," have covered thousands of miles in past years, raising funds for the now-famous research hospital in Memphis, Tenn. in a monumental effort to help children in all parts of the world.

THE HOSPITAL, which was founded by entertainer Thomas, has rewarded this effort by making dramatic progress in its battle against acute lymphocytic and other catastrophic childhood diseases.

Since the hospital opened in 1962, teen marchers have raised more than $15 million to support basic and clinical research of various forms of childhood cancer and other diseases.

"You can't tell me America's young people aren't wonderful," Thomas said. "Fantastic accomplishments at St. Jude Children's Research Hospital are a monument to their efforts."

Part of that monument is physical. The institution is proceeding with a $10 million expansion program that will enhance the hospital's expanding role as the leading research institution specializing in catastrophic childhood illnesses.

THE EXPANSION is needed to provide better research facilities and also to handle a growing patient load.

Research at St. Jude has led to miraculous recoveries for many children once considered incurable, Thomas noted.

Doctors at the center have reported that children afflicted with acute lymphocytic leukemia, the most common form of blood cancer in the young, today have a better than 50 per cent chance for survival as the result of medical advances pioneered at St. Jude.

Dramatic survival rates also have been achieved for some solid tumors, such as those found in Hodgkin's Disease, Wilms tumor and Ewings Sarcoma, all forms of cancer.

NO OTHER national philanthropic organization has relied so heavily on young Americans to carry the thrust of its fund-raising efforts.

Actress Marlo Thomas, who followed in her father's tracks by becoming an active booster of St. Jude and a member of its board of directors, has spearheaded the annual teen marches in past years.

"Young persons have been disparaged because of a few," Ms. Thomas said. "However, the majority of our youth is tremendous. They really want to do something worthwhile and realize there is a need."

"They are idealistic and feel they can make a difference."

THE INROADS made at St. Jude Children's Research Hospital prove they can.

Teenage residents of Romulus may become involved by calling area chairman Diane Banks at 941-0320.

Two local women are now PN's

Among the 58 students to be graduated Sept. 8 from the 51st class to graduate from the one-year program in practical nurse education conducted by the Ann Arbor Public Schools Practical Nurse Education Program were two local women, Norma Jean McLaughlin of 35 E. Wabash St., Belleville, and Rosemary Mickevicius of 9050 Oakville Waltz Rd., Willis.

The commencement speaker was Mrs. Edna Freeman Adastie, Principal, Shaper School of Nursing, Detroit. Dr. Harry Howard, Superintendent, Mae Edna Doyle, R.N. Program Director gave the greeting. Earl Shaffer, Director of Occupational Training presented certificates. The student response was given by Mrs. Sandra Carter of Ypsilanti.

The Practical Nurse Program is completing its 25th year of operations this October. 1959 students have been graduated since its inception. The majority of these graduates are now working in hospitals, doctor's offices, and health agencies throughout Southeastern Michigan. Graduates of the program become Licensed Practical Nurses upon passing the Michigan State Board of Nursing Licensure Examination.

The program affiliates with St. Joseph Mercy Hospital, Ann Arbor; Beyer Memorial Hospital, Ypsilanti; Annapolis Hospital, Wayne; Emma L. Bixby Hospital, Adrian and Wyandotte General Hospital, Wyandotte, for clinical practice for students.

The Ann Arbor Public Schools plan to phase out the program this school year and the Washtenaw Community College plans to open a program in the near future. It is suggested that persons interested in information regarding the new program contact the Health Occupations Division of the Washtenaw Community College sometime after February 1, 1975.

MISS BREEN

Breen-Burke set October altar date

Donna Marie Breen and Timothy J. Burke, both of Belleville, plan to be married this fall at St. Anthony's Catholic Church in Belleville. Their engagement and Oct. 4 wedding date are announced by Mr. and Mrs. Donald V. Breen of 4430 Willis Rd., Belleville, parents of the bride-elect. A 1974 Belleville High School graduate, Miss Breen is employed at Burgo's in Belleville.

Her fiancé, the son of Mrs. Ernestine Burke of 207 W. Michigan Ave., Oscoda, and the late Roland A. Burke, completed high school while serving with the U.S. Army. He is now employed at Special Industrial Service in Wayne.

IT'S THE SMILE THAT COUNTS — One of the biggest parts of being a candy stripper is bringing a cheerful smile into the patient's room. Volunteer Janet Milatz from Romulus High School, assists Nellie Fourroux as her husband, Willie, watches. The Fourrouxs praised the girls for their attitude and willingness to work so hard on a volunteer basis. "They deserve a pat on the back," according to Fourroux.

Romulus teens spend summer as volunteers

The 31 candy strippers who volunteered their time each week during the summer at Annapolis Hospital were recruited from high schools in the Western Wayne County area.

John Glenn, Wayne Memorial, Garden City East, Garden City West, Taylor Center, Annapolis High, Cherry Hill, Ladywood, Aquinas and Romulus were all included in the program.

Strippers from Romulus, Kris Deline, Mary Fyfe, Janet Milatz and Celia Siegel saw to such duties as brushing and styling a patient's hair before visiting hours, playing checkers with restless or bored persons, watering flowers, and in general, just helping.

IT'S A LEARNING EXPERIENCE, TOO — Among the duties of the candy strippers are bed-making, preparing hospital packs, working in central supply and delivering mail. Because many of the volunteers want to some day become nurses, the candy stripper experience gives them a look at the profession first hand under the guidance of nurses such as third floor head nurse Alice Wright, who is teaching Janet Milatz.

Romulus girls hit the heights in mid-Africa

By LEE SMITH
Suburban Living Editor

Talk about hitting the heights! And talk about having to come back down to earth! Well, when you've scaled such overwhelming summits as Mt. Kilimanjaro, coming back to earth is a 1-o-n-g way back. Such was the experience two young Romulus students experienced this summer as they spent six weeks in Africa. Majorie Glazier and Ava Wensko, both juniors at Romulus High School, are finally getting their equilibrium back after the long trip home (Kenya to London to New York to Detroit) and the jet-lag malady that seems to strike long-distance travelers.

The daughters of the Lon D. Glaziers of Cogswell Road and the William Wenskos of Walnut Drive, Marge and Ava applied to the American Institute of Studies for admission to the University of Nairobi. On being accepted (and figuring finances - since no one sponsored the girls) the twosome left July 13. On arrival in Africa they soon learned that the natives EXPECT you to haggle over prices (too late, though, since they'd already paid 65 cents for a one-mile bus trip which could have been cut to almost nothing had they known about bargaining.)

The hours-long trip up Kilimanjaro was, of course, the highlight of their stay along with going on safari, seeing native tribal dances and being greeted by Mayor Margaret Kenyatta herself.

The girls' group of 18 students were from Trenton, Farmington and the states of Texas, Connecticut and Kansas. The entire foreign study group totaled around 168 and all were met by Her Honor who was presented with a copper spoon from Ava and Marge, a representative gift of the copper mining industry in northern Michigan.

And, if you happen to be a "Jackie O." fan, the girls also spotted Mrs. Onassis, Caroline and John in the open market at Nairobi.

They also reported that President Ford's picture was up in the U.S. Embassy within five minutes of Nixon's resignation, they being there at the time of the announcement.

Classes the pair attended were African geography and geology, biology, music and dance and Swahili. They are in hopes of receiving some academic credit in social studies for all their efforts.

GROUP BIDS 'ADIEU' TO SUMMER

Labor Day, of course, means "so long summer" so several couples got together for the week-end for a "farewell" party up in Beulah on Crystal Lake.

Cottage-owners Mike and Kathy Gallagher of Flint came up with the idea and asked the Tim Treschs of Romulus to pack a bag and "come on up." The weather didn't turn out too well but nothing dampened the enthusiasm of the group which included Tim's and Kathy's parents, the Gordon Treschs of Birmingham, and another sister, Gayle Ford, her hubby Ben, and their twins, David and Dawn, of Oxford.

Other relatives included in the plans were a special uncle and aunt, the Howard Heaths of Pontiac, and their married sons and their wives, Mike and Sue Heath and tiny daughter, Tricia, of Plymouth, and Brad and Michelle Heath and son, Michael, of Rochester.

Being avid bridge and poker players as well as amateur culinary "experts" the clan just ignored the cool reception the weatherman had given them and made the most of indoor activities.

Ceremony followed by garden reception

A winding staircase draped with daisies, white mums, snapdragons and gladiolas formed the setting for the summer ceremony at which Derek King and Karen Ann Paulsen became husband and wife.

The Rev. Wilson Wood conducted the 3 p.m. nuptials Aug. 3 in the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lewis (Jack) Paulsen of 47252 North Shore Dr., Belleville. Double ring vows were exchanged before the immediate family with John Denver's recording, "Anne's Song," providing background music.

THE BRIDEGROOM is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Roy King of 10845 Borgman, Belleville. Given in marriage by her father, Karen was gowned in an ivory Alfred Angelo original, the high neckline and bodice frosted with lace, seed pearls and rhinestones. The lace motif was repeated on the long renaissance sleeves and also on the ruffled detachable train.

She wore a little Juliet cap accented with pink sweetheart roses which matched the cascade bouquet she carried.

As her sister's only attendant, Jeanne Paulsen appeared in powder blue organza trimmed with ivory lace. She arranged miniature pink and blue blooms in her hair and carried a single pink rose.

ROY KING JR. of Ypsilanti was asked to be his brother's best man.

At 5 p.m. some 250 guests arrived at the Paulsen's for the garden reception which was held beneath a green and white striped tent. Mrs. Paulsen greeted relatives and friends in a silk chiffon sleeveless pleated gown in a lemon sherbet color while the bridegroom's mother donned a Lee Jordan original jacket dress in green. Both were presented with white orchid corsages.

Before taking up residence at 85 S. Hewitt, Ypsilanti, the young couple spent three weeks honeymooning in California.

The new Mrs. King is attending Eastern Michigan University where she is majoring in education. Her husband attended E.M.U. and Lawrence Tech and is now working in the engineering department of the Edward C. Levy Co. of Dearborn.

MRS. DEREK KING

Back to cooking for two? It's fun!

Cooking for one or two people can be fun, says Portia Morris, Michigan State University extension nutrition specialist.

After years of cooking for a hungry family, the older homemaker may find cooking for one or two less satisfying. "A woman should think back to the time when she was a bride and how much fun it was to cook for her husband," Dr. Morris suggests.

"Use your special china once in a while and cook something new and exciting," she adds.

Invite company over. You may think you can't afford it.

However, if your company reciprocates, the cost will even out.

Many foods can be cooked in large amounts and frozen in individual servings.

"Cook a large pot of spaghetti sauce and freeze the extra. You'll save time and energy in preparing other meals," recommends Dr. Morris.

Plan a menu for each week and stick to it. Select foods that will give you a full share of nutrients and cut down on foods high in calories only.

Remember, proper nutrition is essential for good health and just as important for the elderly as for others.

MR. AND MRS. CHESTER WOJIE JR.

Wojie-Schaerer repeat vows at local Methodist Church

The First United Methodist Church of Belleville was reserved Aug. 31 for the double ring rite which united Laurie Schaerer and Chester Wojie Jr. in holy matrimony.

The Rev. Joy Arthur presided at the afternoon nuptials before some 200 assembled relatives and friends who later gathered in the Fellowship Hall for the wedding reception.

Mrs. Glenn Miller was at the organ to play traditional bridal music as the bride entered the aisle on the arm of her father. For the occasion the altar was appointed with white gladiolas, mums and candelabras.

MR. AND MRS. James H. Schaerer of 48024 Bemis Rd., Belleville, and Mr. and Mrs. Chester Wojie Sr. of 48442 Hull Rd., Belleville, are parents of the young couple who are now living on Montague Street in Belleville.

Laurie chose for her wedding day a gown of crystalline and cotton venise lace. The little fitted lace bodice was patterned with a square neckline and full bishop sleeves with deep lace cuffs. More of the lace appeared above the flounced hemline and also banded the bride's elbow-length illusion veil which was caught to a crescent headpiece of lace. Completing her bridal finery was a bouquet of daisies.

Pale yellow and nile green were chosen as the color scheme for the occasion. As her sister's honor maid, Tamara Schaerer donned a yellow dress and matching picture hat and carried a white wicker basket filled with green and yellow daisies.

Green outfits were worn by Gail Saksowski, the bridegroom's sister, Pam Wojie, and the bride's cousin, Janis Santure, who was junior bridesmaid.

A cousin, John Linfield of Monroe, eight, carried out the role of ringbearer.

Best man was Dale Wojie, the bridegroom's brother. Groomsmen were Ronald Held and Gary Held, brothers of the bride from Belleville, and the junior attendant, Larry Wojciehowski, cousin of the bridegroom. Ushers were Jim Oltersdorf and Ed Watson, both of Belleville.

Count on corned beef to please the palate

Who can blame Jiggs, of comic strip fame, for his yen for corned beef and cabbage which lured him to Dinty Moore's! Wonderfully flavorsome, corned beef has appeal few of its many fans can resist.

A smarter Maggie might have relied on strategy instead of a rolling pin to keep Jiggs home. Had Maggie's kitchen been filled with that tantalizing aroma of corned beef cooking, Jiggs never could have torn himself away.

It's a good idea for a homemaker, whether she has a wandering Jiggs or not, to put corned beef and cabbage on the menu occasionally.

6 to 8 medium-sized carrots, halved
6 to 8 medium-sized red potatoes
6 to 8 small whole onions
1 medium-sized head cabbage, cut into 6 to 8 wedges

Cover corned beef with water. Cover tightly and simmer 3 hours. Pare a ¾-inch band around each potato. Add potatoes, carrots and onions and cook 30 minutes. Add cabbage and continue cooking 10 to 15 minutes, or until meat and vegetables are tender. 6 to 8 servings.

Government may regulate clothing styles in future

In a few years you Belleville, Romulus and New Boston women may not be able to purchase a caftan or a long flowing nightgown, Wayne County home economists report.

Loose hanging sleeves, roomy negligees and flared skirts may not be on the market if the National Bureau of Standards (NBS) can convince the Consumer Products Safety Commission such items are fire hazards.

The NBS is studying fiber and fabric content, fabric burning time, garment configuration and fit of shirts, pants, pajamas, robes and dresses.

FLAME-RESISTANT regulations already cover fabric content of children's sleepwear sizes 0 to 6X in the U.S. Australia has even passed styling regulations for children's sleepwear.

The Office of Information and Hazard Analysis believes fit and configuration have a greater influence on burn severity than does fiber content.

"One of the problems with the issue of flammability is that certain aspects, such as fiber content, have been blown out of proportion. Garment design, the environmental situation and the source of the ignition are other factors that must be considered in this issue," says Bernetta Kahabka, Michigan State University clothing specialist.

Companies are developing many new and more flame-resistant fibers and chemical finishes. One company recently developed the first flame-resistant polyester knit fabrics for clothing.

BY 1979 probably all apparel will be covered by flammability standards.

"The final responsibility is the consumer's eliminating the ignition source which causes clothing to catch fire. This is particularly true for children and the elderly."

ROASTING PIG AT 4-H FAIR — Although the recently held Wayne County 4-H Fair kept many of the exhibitors of animal live stock quite busy, some of the exhibitors and 4-H'ers took time out during the 6-day run of the fair to sample some of their own live stock. Darrell Blount of New Boston roasts a pig. He was assisted by James Fourth, also of New Boston and member of the Huron Valley 4-H Club. — The Enterprise-Roman photo.

By two feet

Belleville Lake level to drop

The water level of 6-mile long Belleville Lake will be lowered two feet to permit a trash fish kill operation in Huron River near Flat Rock by the Michigan Department of Natural Resources (DNR). The lowering of the lake level by Van Buren Township Water Department personnel began on Monday and will continue through Sept. 19, said Ben R. Robertson, director of community development for Van Buren Township. The present level of the lake is 651 feet above sea level, Robertson said. He warned residents and others who own boats on the lake to be ready for the 2-foot drop. ROBERTSON stated that the DNR requested a lowering of the lake level in order to facilitate a trash fish killing program in the Huron River located in the Flat Rock area. The river empties into Lake Erie.

Boats piers in the shallow areas of the lake should probably be moved during the 10-day period of level lowering.

The lake level will be restored immediately after the fish killing operation is completed or right after Sept. 19.

The lowering of the lake's level will permit the lake to serve as a holding pond for rain water and water coming downriver for Ypsilanti, Robertson explained.

THE LAKE LEVEL will be reduced by an opening of the flood gates at the Belleville Lake dam, located at the eastern end of the lake, and draining water slowly into the Huron River.

The level will be reduced several inches each day of the 10-day period or until the 2-foot drop is accomplished, said Robertson.

A similar trash fish killing program was conducted in Belleville Lake last fall.

New I-94 section is open for traffic

A 3-mile stretch of new road on westbound I-94 from Wayne Road to Haggerty now is open to traffic, according to the State Highway and Transportation Department.

The new 3-lane road is part of a major rebuilding project on I-94 which eventually will provide three lanes in both directions from Detroit to US-23, just east of Ann Arbor. Presently, I-94 is two lanes wide in both directions west of Wayne Road.

The new section, opened

Thursday, crosses the interchange of I-94 and I-275, a north-south freeway through western Wayne County which is under construction.

The highway department plans call for a new westbound I-94 route through Wayne County, north of the present westbound route.

The present westbound route will become eastbound I-94, allowing the highway department to eliminate some dangerous curves and provide better service drives along the freeway.

Swim class to start

The aquatic programs held during the fall, winter and spring months under the supervision of the Van Buren Parks and Recreation Department begin this Saturday at the Belleville High School pool.

The program, to be held every Saturday from 1 to 5:15 p.m. during the fall, winter and spring season, includes instructional swimming for infants up to adult advanced swimming and family swim nights from 7 to 9 p.m. on Tuesdays.

The fall swim schedule has been changed to permit smaller classes and more variety in classes, said Jeffery G. Clark, parks and recreation director.

Recently the parks and recreation department hired its first aquatics coordinator to assist in the supervision of the department's expanded instructional swimming

The learn-to-swim schedule under the supervision of trained lifeguards is as follows:

Picnic assists club's coffers

The second annual "Old-Fashioned Picnic" recently sponsored by the Oakbrooke Villa Mothers Club and Senior Citizens Club, netted more than $250. The money will be used to sponsor a Thanksgiving dinner in the townhouse community, a Christmas party for needy children and to buy recreational equipment.

According to the picnic directors, a rock band and two folk singers entertained at the picnic and the Romulus Fire Department provided free candy for the children.

Romulus merchants also donated more than 50 gifts to be used as prizes in a raffle.

Guppies (preschoolers four to six years of age including infants), 1 to 1:25 p.m.; Beginners (youngsters new to swimming), 1:30 to 2:40 p.m.; advanced beginners, 2:30 to 3:15 p.m.; intermediate and swimmers, 3:20 to 4:05 p.m.; lifesaving, 4:10 to 5 p.m. (winter season only), and adult swimming, 4:10 to 5 p.m. Clark also announced that the department will begin instructions in fly casting today from 7 to 8 p.m. at the South Junior High School gymnasium. The fee for the instruction is $3.

NEW VIEW — Apartment hunters will find the selection of multiple housing breaking away from the antiseptic appearance of yesteryear as it offers a variety of life styles with exterior and interior designs to match. Gone are the straight designs as builders offer every look from colonial to ultra-modern.

In this complex

Individuality is the key

Have the high interest on loans blues? Faced with living in an apartment when your heart is yearning for the comforts of a home?

Take heart. Apartment living no longer is the institutionalized, lackluster experience of yesteryear. Bent on attracting more people into their dwellings, developers are beginning to offer hopeful tenants packages that few could resist.

EVERYTHING FROM life on a lake to clubhouse and swim facilities, not to mention dish washers and saunas, are being included in the rent these days.

And for the inexperienced apartment hunters, a few tips on what to look for can be a blessing.

According to Wes Wise, the publisher of Apartment Construction News, apartments for sale are readily available. He mentioned that of the 1,800,000 new housing units scheduled to go up in 1974, about one-third will be townhouses for sale to consumers.

"People interested in buying a condominium in 1974 will have the luxury of being able to shop around," Wise said.

IT'S A GOOD IDEA to take along a check list while inspecting the premises before buying. Prior to looking at a new apartment, write down the measurements of your current place. Empty rooms always appear larger. The measurements will give you a yardstick for comparing both the total living area and the size of rooms in the new apartment.

Inquire about storage space. Remember that if you're moving from a house, you won't have an attic or basement to store things in. Be sure there is ample closet space near the front entrance as well as in the bedrooms. Look to see if the kitchen and dining areas are convenient for cooking and serving meals.

Try to imagine how the furniture will be arranged to fit the room layout taking the placement of windows and doors into consideration. Inspect the windows and doors for signs of quality craftsmanship. Wood windows and wood panel doors add beauty and indicate the builder's concern for comfort.

You can be more confident of quality, if the wood windows in an apartment have insulating glass, double glass with an insulating air space between. Insulating glass provides comfort in winter by keeping heat in.

STOCK WINDOWS of ponderosa pine with insulating glass are designed to operate easily and to last for years. Windows and doors of ponderosa pine are chemically treated to resist weather abuse. Modern wood windows with insulating glass are an indication that the apartment is above average.

Before purchasing the unit, make sure the apartment has enough electrical outlets. As a general rule, any point along the floor line of a wall should be within about six feet of the nearest outlet. And they should be double outlets. In kitchens there should be several outlets at countertop height for appliances. Outlets in all areas preferably should be the three prong, grounded type to prevent shocks from faulty equipment.

And don't forget to check the neighborhood and evaluate the location. Ask the neighbors or the school superintendent about local schools and teacher-pupil ratios. Can children walk to schools, the store, parks? How close is shopping? If you're a commuter, how far away is the bus stop, train station or expressway? Ask neighbors, or better yet, make the trips yourself to find out for sure.

Finally there is the question of how much you want to spend. When buying, a practical rule of thumb is to limit the purchase price to about 2½ times your annual take home pay.

To attract renters

Owners spruce up property

The institutional look of drab concrete walls and metal sash in multi-family housing rapidly is giving ground to an army of apartment dwellers demanding the appearance and comfort in the best of single-family homes.

Builders, recognizing the appeal inherent in the warm, textured appearance of single-family homes, now are incorporating that look in multi-family garden and townhouse apartments. The styles of these apartment communities range from early American to contemporary.

Wood products provide the warmth and texture that the residents of apartment complexes desire. So builders are using wood components such as panel doors and wood windows to attract residents. Panel doors and windows of ponderosa pine come in a variety of contemporary and traditional styles. Residents find they lend an air of distinction to an apartment. Because of their availability in many stock sizes, builders discover they are more economical than custom units.

Cross-and-Bible panel doors of ponderosa pine can emphasize the colonial architecture of a community while multi-paneled Mediterranean doors with ornate carving lend authenticity to the contemporary look.

A design theme can be carried further with wood windows. Casements, for example, blend well with modern design. Adding removable grilles gives them a traditional, multi-paned look.

To meet the comfort requirements of today's apartment residents, builders are installing wood windows with insulating glass. Quality wood windows with insulating glass provide winter comfort by guarding against heat loss.

Architect creates 'spirit of the past'

An increasing number of Americans are beginning to look for housing that combines the best aspects of home ownership with apartment living. They want the individuality and style of a home without the responsibilities of upkeep.

Ordinary garden apartments or look-alike row houses are not fulfilling their needs.

The type of place that meets their requirements is personified by a townhouse community in New Jersey. It combines modern living conveniences with an architectural "spirit" of the past. A state highway which bisects the village helps to give it the character of two small single-family home communities.

AN AUTHENTIC colonial aura was set by the designs of Walter Pfeiffer, A.I.A., noted for his American colonialist architecture. Design features from the past, such as multi-light windows and six-panel doors were duplicated with modern stock wood units of ponderosa pine.

The townhouse interiors have many of the features of modern single family homes such as central heating and air conditioning.

Insulating glass in wood sash windows helps maintain comfortable room temperatures year-round by reducing heat loss in winter and heat gain in summer. It also reduces upkeep by eliminating the need for storm sash and cutting window washing chores by half.

COLONIAL LOOK — Modern convenience combines with a "spirit of the past" to provide a single-family look to multi-family townhouses. Windows, shutters and panel doors of ponderosa pine give it the early American touch. Asphalt shingles in earth tones visually separate each "house."

Exterior styling is varied to give each unit an individualized quality and appearance. A sprinkling of box and bay windows among traditional double-hung units add charm and interest to the facades.

SIX-PANEL doors of ponderosa pine in a variety of entryway design, emphasize the colonial appearance while delineating one house from another. The multi-light look of the windows was achieved with convenient removable grilles. Stock wood shutters add an appropriate early American touch.

Individuality of styling was further enhanced by handsome asphalt shingle roofs in rustic "earthtone" colors which visually separate each house.

Wood touches remove apartment's sameness

"One picture is worth a thousand words" is the way the saying goes. With so many apartment houses the victims of uniformity in color scheme and design, the people who live in them often look to interior decorating as one way to ensure that the picture presented to visitors speaks well of the occupants.

Hiring an interior decorator can do wonders for a run of the mill apartment. But it can be expensive. Do-it-yourselfers can save money and add a touch of distinction by making simple changes in the decor of windows and doors.

Many apartments come with ordinary shades or Venetian blinds as standard equipment. Besides the look-alike appearance they create in an apartment house, they have drawbacks. When shades are pulled down, they shut out light and cut off ventilation. Venetian blinds are more versatile, but tedious to clean.

THE SIZE AND shape of window and door openings in relation to each other and to the total apartment, traffic through the rooms, light, outside views, ventilation, privacy and finally personal considerations are all important factors in interior design. Since outside light and temperature change daily as well as seasonally, flexibility is the key to window decoration.

Exterior attracts residents

Apartment shoppers are becoming just as selective in their choice of multi-family housing as they are in their selection of automobiles. They want quality, individuality and style — both inside and out.

Until recently, tenants were satisfied with the usual interior inducements of wall to wall carpeting, fireplaces, terraces and kitchens with automatic dishwashers, electric ranges and garbage compactors. Now, they are looking at apartment exteriors as well and opting for garden apartments and townhouses with the custom home look and are moving away from the drab apartment houses that resemble institutions.

The use of good quality building materials that add style and beauty to the exterior of multi-family housing can give both new and older units the custom look. This is achieved in a variety of ways.

One area that lends individuality to garden apartments and townhouses is the roof. The use of color and texture in roofing can separate visually each roof from its neighbors. Earthtone hues of brown, buff, olive and slate with random embossing and staggered buttlines, available in asphalt shingles, make this possible.

Ceramic coated mineral granules embedded in the top layer of the shingles gives them their color. The heavier texture creates attractive deep shadow lines.

Air show has thrills

A City of Detroit Air Show is scheduled to take place at City Airport this weekend, featuring aerial acrobatics and ground displays of aircraft and air rides.

"Barnstorming," common in the 1920s and '30s when Charles Lindbergh flew over the Atlantic, also is planned as part of the show.

William L. Lax, Detroit Aviation Commission director, said the show will be the first of its kind in Detroit in more than 40 years.

THE GROUND show will feature displays of current experimental aircraft, rides for the children, clowns and refreshments. Aerial sightseeing trips will be offered as well.

Michigan is represented by nationally-known aerobatic champion Bob Lyjak. When not barnstorming at air shows around the country in his Waco Taperwing, Lyjak, native of Hamtramck, is a professor of mathematics at the University of Michigan-Dearborn campus.

Another scheduled attraction is wing-walker Wendy Knight, who waves to the crowd far below while standing on the wing of a biplane which loops, spins and dives at 140 miles an hour under the skilled hand of her pilot-husband.

The United States Army's Golden Knights parachute team will perform with eight members involved in an aerial acrobatics show while free-falling 13,500 feet at 180 miles an hour, all the while aiming for a landing on a small target.

THE U.S. ARMY Silver Eagles, a precision helicopter team, also will be in the show. For the youngsters, the Eagles will perform in a helicopter decorated to look like television star Bozo the Clown.

Jim Holland, an ex-Canadian pilot, will perform in his Pitts S-2A Tigre. His specialty is pointing the Tigre straight into the sky, then forcing it into an end-over-end tumble. Another of his stunts involves cutting a ribbon stretched between two 15-foot-high poles with the propeller of his airplane while flying upside down.

Advance tickets are on sale at all J.L. Hudson stores, as well as all Sears stores and Detroit City Airport. Tickets are $3 for adults and $1 for children under 12. Free parking will be provided for all advance ticket-holders arriving between 10 a.m. and noon for the Saturday and Sunday performances.

Entertainment

Weekend Arab festival promises exotic fare

The exotic Arab World Festival, second to the last in Detroit's series of weekend ethnic festivals, will be presented this weekend by area Arab-Americans.

Numerous civic, charitable, cultural and church groups will attempt to revive the tales of the fabled Arabian Nights, turning the riverfront area into an ancient marketplace and bazaar.

Although folk dancers and belly dancers will make regular appearances throughout the 3-day event, this year's Arab World Festival will feature a dazzling cultural exhibit, to include native art and relics from the 15 Arab nations of the Middle East, including several items loaned to the festival from Arab embassies in Washington.

Other entertainment will include a fashion show featuring native dress of the Middle East nations, fortune telling, a baggammon tournament and interpretations of the noted Arab poet Khalil Gibran.

The 28 food booths will offer such tasty treats as kibbee, sheekh, shish kebab and yabrak. The exotic foods can be enjoyed while watching a colorful Arab harem dance of the Seven Veils presentation.

At 2 p.m. on Sunday, a unique ecumenical religious service will begin, featuring a combined inter-faith format of both Christian and Islamic clergymen and imams.

Greenfield Village cuts ticket rates

In the face of rising prices, Greenfield Village and the Henry Ford Museum in Dearborn is now offering a 10 per cent saving to visitors who purchase a new special ticket covering admission to both attractions.

In announcing the new combination rate, officials at the indoor-outdoor museum complex explained that it is in keeping with their policy of making their famous collections of Americana as readily accessible as possible to as many people as possible.

Adult combination tickets are $4.50, and children ages six to 14 will be admitted for $1.80. If purchased separately, admission to each attraction is $2.50 for adults and $1 for children. Children under six years of age are admitted free under either plan.

Purchases of these special-rate tickets may use them at any time through Dec. 31.

1974. However, attendance records indicate that most visitors prefer to tour the adjacent facilities in a 2-day period.

Exhibit on bees to open

The wonderful world of bees may be seen in action during Cranbrook Institute of Science's Honey Harvest, from 1 to 5 p.m. on Sept. 21 and 22.

Not only will visitors have a chance to see the queen bee laying eggs and the workers covering and protecting the eggs, but also the gathering and processing of honey with naturalist Wayne Koser and even the opportunity to taste the honey will be available to adults and children for the price of museum admission.

To combat arson

State Police beef up forces

The Michigan State Police is strengthening the arson investigation arm of its fire marshal division with the addition of eight officers, according to Col. George L. Halverson, department director.

This beefed-up arson policing capability of the state police is attributed to the increased concerns of members of the Michigan Legislature and of state agencies and municipal departments about the worsening problem.

The additional men will be given specialized training in arson policing techniques not only at State Police headquarters in East Lansing, but through the assistance of the Detroit arson squad.

FOUR OF THE officers will be phased into active duty about the middle of this month and the other four sometime after Labor Day.

Halverson said: "These additional arson officers will comprise veteran, experienced personnel now in the process of being screened."

The first four assignments will be to the State Police facilities at Flint, Jackson, Paw Paw and Traverse City. The second four will be assigned to Bridgeport, two in Detroit areas yet to be decided upon, and the other to Marquette.

The department plans to include officers with backgrounds in detective work."

The arson unit of the fire marshal division, with these additions, will comprise 13 men, including a supervisor.

Sumpter extends rubbish service

The Sumpter Township Board of Trustees at a recent special session unanimously approved an extension to Dec. 14 of the township's current weekly rubbish collections.

Prior to July 1 of this year, township residents received twice-a-month trash pickups. On July 1, the township trustees approved the initiation of weekly trash pickups in the township.

Last week the township's rubbish collecting contractor, Beaudrie Trucking Co. of Sumpter Township, was instructed to continue with the weekly rubbish pickup program which was to have expired on Aug. 31.

ARSON STATISTICS for last year showed 5,041 fires in the state that did an estimated $20 million damage. These fires included 1,030 for profit, 44 involving civil disorders, 390 related to pyromania, and 3,577 with miscellaneous motives.

In addition, 28 of the state's large loss, $50,000 or more, fires last year where arson was listed as a cause did an estimated $13.6 million damage. Arson fires also were listed as responsible for six deaths.

Also related to the arson problem in Michigan were the 793 bombings and bomb threats reported in 1973 by the state's 920 fire departments. These included 268 fire bombings, 14 other bombings, and 511 bomb threats.

Statistics on arson are included in the annual summary on Michigan fires compiled on information from local fire departments by the State Police fire marshal division.

Red Cross needs help

To help maintain the many programs and services extended to the community, Red Cross is in need of 800 men and women to become volunteers.

The week of September 22-28 has been set aside as Red Cross Volunteer Recruitment Week.

The biggest need for volunteers in Western Wayne County is in the Red Cross Blood Program. Individuals are being sought to volunteer in the west regional blood donor station in Dearborn, as well as on bloodmobile units, and to make open heart surgery telephone calls.

"Volunteers play an important part in securing blood required for surgery and transfusions. Within the blood program there are a multitude of services volunteers are needed to perform," said Mrs. Edward Boresamle of Dearborn, chairman of Blood Program volunteers in Western Wayne County.

Bloodmobile and blood donor station volunteers perform "non-medical" duties such as taking temperatures, registering donors and serving refreshments. Open heart surgery callers make appointments for volunteer blood donors, by blood type, to donate blood for open heart surgery.

Red Cross has developed the "team" concept which enables members of clubs and groups to work together on various activities within the Red Cross Blood Program.

Right now in Western Wayne County, Red Cross is seeking two teams, a total of 30 persons, to work in the west regional blood donor station in Dearborn and on bloodmobile units scheduled in the area.

A THOUGHT TO REMEMBER

HAROLD REDISKE, JR. — DIRECTORS

Last summer, a man asked another fellow, "What's your daughter doing this summer?" The frank answer was, "Her hair most of the time." So much is heard about youngsters not wanting, or even trying to earn a few dollars on their own, it is a real pleasure to cite some cases to the contrary.

Two brothers, age 9 and 11, got new customers with this sign on their backs while cutting grass: "WE DON'T JUST CUT YOUR LAWN, WE MANICURE IT." ... Several boys had shoe shining stands. One boy put up this sign: "FREE! FINE SHOE SHINE ON YOUR RIGHT FOOT FOR FREE! LEFT FOOT ONLY 25 CENTS!" ... A group of youngsters were selling worms in a fishing area. One lad put up this sign: "WORMS WITH FISH APPEAL! ONLY 25 CENTS FOR A BIG DOZEN!" ... A newspaper boy had this sign on his bicycle: "YOUR NEWSPAPER WRAPPED IN CELLOPHANE ON RAINY DAYS!" ... An 8 year old girl was ringing door bells to sell Christmas seals. She sold a lot with this simple approach: "THESE COST A PENNY A PIECE, TEN CENTS FOR A SHEET. HOW MANY DO YOU WANT?" ...

True, these are exceptional cases. Nonetheless, with this sort of juvenile ingenuity, the future of America's business outlook certainly isn't hopeless - by a long means.

THE SMARTEST $5 YOU'LL EVER SPEND ON YOUR CAR!

WHY?

EON ENDS THE OIL CHANGE HASSLE.

EON is a pure synthetic lubricant. Unlike the oil you now use in your car, EON does not break down, create harmful sludge deposits or need to be changed every few thousand miles.

BETTER GAS MILEAGE.

EON lubricates better to make your engine run easier. Actual tests have shown that gas mileage should increase by at least 10% simply because of reduced engine friction and cleaner engine parts. Your engine will probably begin to idle smoother and quieter with EON.

EON SAVES YOUR ENGINE.

By neutralizing acids and dissolving carbon deposits, EON continually keeps your engine parts new car clean. After 20,000 brutal miles in a police squad car, the parts in the torn down engine were found to be within new car specifications. Engines just won't wear with EON.

LESS OIL CONSUMPTION.

All engines burn oil. EON users have generally experienced only 1/6th as much oil consumption as they did before switching to EON. And their filters only need changing every 24,000 miles instead of at frequent intervals.

EASIER WINTER STARTING.

EON remains fluid to -60° F. Engines turn over with ease on the coldest mornings. No more sluggish winter starts that drain batteries and tax your starter.

IT'S NOT A NEW PRODUCT.

The Germans used synthetic oils in World War II, when they ran out of petroleum. All jet planes use synthetic lubricants as petroleum based oils cannot take the temperature extremes and cause too much wear. EON is an improved synthetic lubricant developed and designed specifically for the demands of your automobile engine.

TESTED, PROVEN AND APPROVED.

The Houston police department tested EON in their squad cars under extreme conditions. So far, they have run over 40,000 miles without changing the EON. That's like 120,000 miles of normal driving in your car. EON has been given an SAE 10-W-40 multi-viscosity rating, but that is using a standard used to judge petroleum based oils. EON meets or exceeds all recognized test criteria for engine lubricants.

EON SAVES YOU MONEY!

No more oil change hassles. Better gas mileage. Fewer tune-ups. Fewer oil filters. Less oil consumption. Virtually eliminates engine wear.

IF IT WERE UP TO EON, YOU'D NEVER HAVE TO CHANGE YOUR OIL AGAIN.

RESIDENTS COMPLAIN — The installation of speed bumper traps in the Suburban Estates Mobile Home Park, 16800 Lotz Rd., Van Buren Township, has brought complaints from park residents. They contend that the height of the black-topped speed bumper traps are "hazardous to life and limb causing a possible loss of control of vehicle and damage to vehicle. "They have appealed to township officials to check. Shown is one of the speed traps at the park's entrance. Reportedly the park management had lowered the trap. — The Enterprise-Roman photo.

State considers funds

A public hearing will be held this week on a new legislative plan for increasing state funding of public schools, with proportionate reductions in school property taxes.

The Senate Education Committee will hear public testimony on Senate Bill 1290 at 10 a.m. tomorrow in the board of education meeting room of the Taylor School District at 23033 Northline Rd. between Pardee and Telegraph.

Senator William Faust, D-Westland a member of the Senate Education Committee, has been joined by 14 Republican senators and 14 other Democratic senators in sponsoring the new plan, which specifically proposes:

—That the level of Michigan's new "guaranteed yield" school aid formula be raised from the $40 per pupil per mill guarantee scheduled for 1975-76 to a $60 per pupil per mill guarantee.

—That districts be required to "roll back" the property taxes they levy in return for the higher state funding, thus shifting a larger portion of school support from property taxes to the state personal and corporate income tax.

"We have already made certain technical improvements in the roll back plan, as a result of computerized analysis and expert recommendations," Faust said. "We anticipate that we will be able to make further improvements as a result of input received at the statewide series of public hearings we are initiating."

Most districts, under the roll back plan, would reduce operating taxes by from 30 percent to one-third yet have basic revenue increases of 7½ percent. An earlier public hearing was scheduled in Ann Arbor

Nursing homes register votes

A statewide registration and "get out to vote" drive will be conducted this week among the patients and residents of nursing homes and long-term care facilities in Michigan.

Patrick J. Callihan, president of the Health Care Association of Michigan, said officials at the association's 280 member facilities will make arrangements with city and township clerks to conduct the drive in their respective facilities during the drive.

"We want to ensure that all eligible voters among the thousands of patients and residents at both our member and non-member facilities are registered and have the opportunity this November to exercise their prerogative at the ballot box," Callihan said. He explained that applications for absentee ballots would be available at each facility during the voter registration drive. Eligible voters 62 years of age and older may apply for an absentee ballot under a bill signed in June by Governor William G. Milliken and given immediate effect.

VA reclaims metals from old films

About $1.4 million is being returned to the federal government from sale of silver and mercury recovered from medical uses in the 171 Veterans Administration

(VA) hospitals during the past year. The recovery also is advantageous in keeping mercury from polluting the environment and in conserving silver at a time when this metal is in extremely short supply. The agency expects to realize some $650,000 from 870,000 pounds of silver recovered from obsolete diagnostic x-ray films, $760,919 from 165,417 troy ounces of refined silver from exhausted x-ray developing solutions, and $36,840 from exhausted medical-device batteries collected in fiscal 1974.

The films are scrapped after serving all useful purposes as medical records. Most of this money will go into the VA revolving fund for furnishing supplies to the agency's hospitals and clinics. The remainder will go into the U.S. Treasury.

Participants of this second group are asked to bring their favorite New Testament translation.

A third group will be led by the pastor, The Rev. Robert Dobson, and involves speakers, tape discussions, films, and sermon talk-backs.

Witness official visits

The circuit overseer of Jehovah's Witnesses Darrell Holman will make a semi-annual visit to the Zion Missionary Church of Belleville at the 7:30 p.m. services Friday.

After being ordained in Italy on May, 18, 1940, he returned to the United States and served as assistant pastor and administrator in the Scranton, Pa., Diocese.

Later, after several years of restudy, he resigned from the Roman Catholic Church and priesthood. He currently is on the editorial staff and director of the Extension Department of Christ's Mission Inc.

The mission, founded in 1882, is a place of refuge

On Wednesday through Sunday part of each day will be devoted to field missionary service. Holman will join ministers from the local congregation in making calls on residents in the community. This is part of the regular door-to-door ministry and training program of Jehovah's Witnesses.

The Saturday evening program begins at 8 p.m. with a Bible question period, "New Things Learned," which includes audience participation. A 30-minute discourse by Holman dealing with counsel for improving one's personal ministry concludes the session.

Governor names hunter safety week in state

The week of Sept. 8-14 has been proclaimed Hunter Safety Week, and Sept. 28 has been deemed Michigan Hunting and Fishing Day by Gov. William G. Milliken.

The observances recognize the contribution of sportsmen toward hunter safety and conservation of natural resources. More than 325,000 young people have learned to hunt safely and responsibly since a state hunter safety program started in 1960. Some 3,500 instructors donate their time to this program.

"I urge all citizens, especially young people, who are seeking hunting licenses, to contact their local conservation officers to enroll in the hunter safety training classes in their communities," Gov. Milliken said.

HE ALSO commended hunters and fishermen, who will observe Hunting and Fishing Day nationally on Sept. 28, for their work and concern to protect Michigan's valuable natural resources.

"Hunters and fishermen, who many years ago saw the need for environmental protection and began to work for it, deserve special recognition as leaders in this effort," he asserted.

MILLIKEN COMMENDS SPORTSMEN — Looking on as Gov. William G. Milliken signs a proclamation designating Sept. 28 as Michigan Hunting and Fishing Day and Sept. 8-14 as Hunter Safety Week are James R. Walker (seated), hunter and safety coordinator for the State Department of Natural Resources, and Thomas L. Washington, executive director of Michigan United Conservation Clubs.

Community education to start in Romulus

With the mailing of 8,500 informational brochures to all homes in the City of Romulus, the 1974-75 version of Romulus Community Education is ready to begin.

The brochure describes 10 different programs designed for the enjoyment of Romulus area residents including adult high school, adult hobby classes, pre-school Head Start, adult learn-to-read classes, community college, GED testing, English-as-a Second Language, Kelsey Hayes industrial education, adult driver's education and a new youth program called "Super Saturday."

If residents have not yet received the brochure through the mails, details about community education programs may be obtained by calling 941-1600, ext. 37.

REGISTRATION will be held from 7 to 9 p.m. Sept. 9-13 at Romulus Senior High School, 9660 S. Wayne Rd., Romulus, or from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. at the board of education offices, located at 36520 Grant Rd.

The various community education activities will attract about 1,500 participants throughout the year, according to Bill Smith, community school director for the Romulus School District.

Fifty two adults graduated from the program in the 1973-74 school years and at least as many are expected to receive diplomas by June of this school year, Smith said.

One of the first students to enroll this fall was Shirley Wilson of 11126 S. Wayne Rd., Romulus, who was honored last year as the program's "Most Courageous Student."

Miss Wilson is a wheelchair patient.

THE ANNUAL "Most Courageous Student" award has been named the Lorena G. Burton Memorial Trophy in honor of the late federal programs director who introduced community education to the Romulus School District.

Earl Lamb, well-known administrator for the school district, will be working with community education as it continues to expand.

Madonna finances scholar

A Belleville area resident has been awarded a Madonna College scholarship for the 1974-75 school year.

She is Charlene Hatcher of 55033 Willis Rd., Sumpter Township, a graduate of Annapolis High School in Dearborn Heights. Mrs. Hatcher enrolled in the Madonna nursing program. The college, located in Livonia, will make scholarship awards in excess of $10,000 this year to students who show both academic promise and need for financial assistance.

More than half of the money has been designated for students 25 years of age and over.

Firemen respond to 4 calls

The Belleville Fire Department answered four fire calls during the month of August. The fires caused an estimated $14,500 in damages, Fire Chief Anthony Talaga said.

The calls included two garage fires, one car fire and one grass fire run.

A garage fire at 116 E. Huron River Dr. caused an estimated $14,000 in damages.

Free food plan gets board nod

The Van Buren Public School District Board of Education has approved a policy to offer free lunches and free milk for children unable to pay for meals served under the National School Lunch and Special Milk Programs during the 1974-75 school year.

Children from families whose income is at or below poverty income guidelines are eligible for free lunch and free milk, said Irvin R. VonDestinon, business manager for the school district.

In addition, families not meeting these criteria but who have other unusual expenses due to extremely high medical expenses, shelter costs in excess of 30 per cent of income, special education expenses due to mental or physical condition of a child, and excessive disaster or casualty losses were urged by Destinon to apply.

THE INFORMATION provided on the filed applications will be confidential and will be used only for the purpose of determining eligibility, VonDestinon said.

The application forms will be sent to homes with a letter to the parents, and may be filed with school officials any time during the school year. Application forms also are available at the administration offices of the school district.
